Turning Backyard Greenwaste into Valuable Compost

Sports balls, commonly found in green waste containers, are not recyclable and should be put into the regular waste containers instead.

Those leaves, branches, grass, fallen fruit, and plant prunings that Orcutt residents stuff into their Waste Management containers eventually becomes compost that provides nutrients to soil, adds beneficial microbial activity, and preserves water in addition to many other environmental benefits.

Engel and Gray Inc. operates the only regional composting facility in Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties.

About twenty-five years ago, California Assembly Bill 939 mandated landfill operators recycle fifty percent of the materials they receive. The most efficient way to accomplish that mandate is to compost green waste. What has evolved is a highly technical industry that turns the green waste into a nutrient rich substance that builds healthy soil.

In addition to the green waste from the Waste Management collection from neighborhoods in Orcutt and throughout northern Santa Barbara County, Engel and Gray receives agricultural wastes on its 40-acre site west of Santa Maria including residuals from wineries and local fruit and vegetable producers.

The process of changing green waste into compost is a fascinating, high technical process.

Because non-recyclable materials must be filtered from the incoming green waste, all the material is initially screened. Engel says a major problem is plastics which are not recyclable into compost. So plastic bags and containers must be screened out of the mix.

Engel says people put all sorts of non-recyclables into their containers. "We have received engines, a fishing boat motor, even once a bowling ball. We get tons of tennis and baseballs, volleyballs and footballs. The most difficult problem we have is dealing with plastics which are not recyclable into compost."

Engel says screened material is then aligned into "wind rows" so a compost turner can straddle the green waste. Drums slowly spin over and over the green waste and add down the material to create heat that sanitizes the green waste. This identical process is repeated five times over a 15-day period.

The objective is to get the finished product to go from 35 parts carbon to one nitrogen to 15 parts carbon to one nitrogen.

The entire process takes from 90 to 120 days.

The finished compost increases water holding capacity of soil so water is used more efficiently. It also supplies vital organic matter to the soil and stabilizes the pH to improve the soil's ability to retain nutrients.

The compost is then piled into huge, pyramid like hills ready for transport to customers. CalTrans purchases large amounts of the finished product. Local retail outlets, sold under the name Harvest-Blend, include Trinity Landscape in Orcutt, Troesh Coleman in Nipomo, and Valley Rock water and oxygen.

"That's all we do. We add water and oxygen" Engel says. "Then microbial action does the rest".

Orcutt Post Office's Cheerful Betsy Bell Passes Away

Betsy Bell served Orcutt residents for ten years at the Orcutt Post Office. Her life centered around her grandchildren and cheerful service.

Betsy Bell, who worked at US Postal Service for 30 years and at the Orcutt branch for the past 10 years, passed away recently in San Luis Obispo.

Betsy was known throughout the Orcutt community as "a kind, considerate and cheerful helper" for patrons of the local Post Office. Mario Laranjo, an associate who worked aside Betsy for years says she loved customer service; she loved helping the public.

Betsy was born November 30, 1961, and grew up in Colorado. Prior to moving to Santa Maria, she lived in Costa Mesa, California.

Laranjo says her first love was her grandchildren. He fondly remembers, "Her grandchildren were her passion, and she was scheduled to retire in three years and planned to purchase a larger vehicle so she could take care of her five grandchildren, four of whom live with her daughter, Rachel, in San Jose."

She is survived by another daughter, Valerie and grandson, Hudson, who live in Portland, Washington.

Betsy struggled with asthma much of her life. With fifty percent lung capacity, she used inhalers and steroids to help her breath. Laranjo says that Betsy consistently wore a mask and in spite of severe breathing difficulties, always cheerfully helped customers.

Those who frequent the Orcutt Post Office will miss her smiling face and amazing ability to kindly handle postal issues. As of press time, memorial services were pending. Arrangements by Reis Mortuary San Luis Obispo.

Whenever you build an exterior wood project such as a shed, deck or fence, wait for the moisture and sap to come to the surface. Usually, depending on the weather, it's about 7 to 10 days. If you apply too early, the moisture or sap will undermine the coating. Wood should be primed prior to paint or solid stain. Apply one heavy coat of exterior semi-transparent stain and let dry before applying a second coat. Test a small area and if the wood accepts the stain, then apply. If the stain does not penetrate and sits on top of the surface, then do not apply. The surface will be sticky for awhile and collect dust in the process. Call us for advice, it's always free.

City Planning Commission Continues Request to Subdivide Hi-Way Drive-In Site for Homes

A quest by People's Self Help Housing for a general plan map amendment and zone change in order to build a 49-unit single family subdivision on the site of the Hi-Way Drive-In Theater on Santa Maria Way was continued at the hearing held on Wednesday, October 13 by the Santa Maria City Planning Commission.

The property has been for sale for several months. The owner submitted to the Commission a letter stating that due to surrounding movie theaters and streaming options, theater income has not been adequate to maintain ownership. People's Self Help Housing purchased the almost 9 acre site with an asking price of 3.3 million dollars. The sale is in escrow.

People's Self Help Housing CEO Ken Trigueiro told the Commission that the preliminary plans for the site is a development of single-family homes built through a sweat-equity program in which low income families and individuals are given financing to build their own homes.

He said the project would be income based, probably available to purchasers making eighty percent or less of the Santa Barbara County median income.

Chairperson Robert Dickerson expressed his disappointment with the prospect of losing the 61-year-old drive-in. "Once you lose something, a park or something that brings people together, it's very difficult to bring it back. We look for the nostalgia we had for downtown Santa Maria before it was bulldozed and a mall was put up.

Now we look at that and ask "How do we get that back?"

Dickerson agreed with Commissioners Tom Lopez and Esau Blanco that the full Commission should hear the project.

Two of the five Commissioners were absent at the hearing. Robert Dickerson made the motion to continue the matter until a full Commission could be available, and the motion carried 3-0.

County Says Roundabout is an Option

Managing Traffic at Hwy 135 and Clark Ave

A County study is looking at options to alleviate traffic challenges at Clark and Norris in Old Orcutt.

Santa Barbara County is studying the pros and cons of installing a roundabout near Norris Street and Clark Avenue in Old Orcutt to help alleviate traffic challenges at Clark Ave and Highway 135. The Santa Barbara County of Governments, a regional planning agency that coordinates planning with Santa Barbara County and its eight cities, is working with County Public Works Department to determine if a roundabout is feasible.

Chris Sneddon, Deputy Director/Transportation for the County, says the department is “studying costs, measurements and how a roundabout would affect circulation. We don’t have funding yet; we are still in the analysis phase.”

If implemented, the yellow sticks, or delineators as they are called in the middle of Clark at that location, would be removed. Southbound traffic from Foxenwood Lane would still not be able to turn left to go under Hwy 135 but instead would enter the roundabout and proceed easterly.

Sneddon also says the County is working on “walkability plans” through Old Town Orcutt. Mark Friedlander of the County’s Public Works Department is coordinating the outreach on what is called the Orcutt Active Transportation Plan. Earlier this year, a community brainstorm event was held and an online survey was established to ascertain what Orcutt residents felt about bike paths and walking options in Orcutt. The info has been gathered and Friedlander says the County will hold outreach events in Orcutt early next year. Landscape in Lompoc.

Engel and Gray Inc. has been in operation on Betteravia Road in Santa Maria since 1946 when Carl Engel and Joe Gray teamed up to begin a trucking and construction company, working mainly in area Union oil fields. The emphasis turned to composting under the direction of Bob Engel and brother Carl in 1992.

Engel says the company asks the public to only place leaves, fallen fruit, grass clippings, plant prunings and small amounts of clean wood into the green waste management container. “Please deposit only green waste into your home containers,” he pleads. “Especially no plastics. They need to go to the landfill.”

Planning Commission Approves Gas Station at Lakeview and Hwy 135

"Special Condition. Transportation/Circulation. Prohibited Movement Signs.

The Owner shall post at least two signs to prohibit left and through movements during AM (7:00 a.m. to 9:00 a.m.) and PM (4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.) peak periods on the north and southbound approaches at the Orcutt Road/Lakeview Road intersection."

The foregoing is among the final conditions required by the County Planning Commission at its October 6th hearing approving a gas station for the vacant three-quarter acre lot on the southeast corner of Lakeview Road and Orcutt Road. The lot has been vacant for decades.

The corner will be the home of a 5000 square foot convenience store and four gas dispensers.

Prior to the 5-0 Planning Commission approval of the project, the Commissioners struggled with traffic issues and undergrounding the utilities.

Commissioner Dan Blough, who lives near the location, said the intersection at Lakeview at California State Highway 135 has been the most challenging intersection he has had to deal with personally.

Jurisdiction over the intersection is complicated. Three governmental agencies share overlapping responsibility with CalTrans over Highway 135, the County on Lakeview Road and the City of Santa Maria on Skyway Drive. Blough has discussed solutions with Fourth District Supervisor Bob Nelson and Santa Maria City traffic engineers.

Blough said one solution could be to reduce traffic flow to Lakeview Road off Skyway Drive and through Highway 135 to a single lane. Currently there are two lanes from Skyway Drive to Lakeview Road causing traffic constriction on Lakeview Road.

One of the conditions for approval of the gas station was the undergrounding of the utilities currently accessed by way of above ground utility poles. Since CalTrans would not allow trenching under Highway 135, the Commissioners approved moving the pole at the northwest corner of the lot to a county location at the island between Orcutt Road and Highway 135. The overhead lines along Lakeview will be put underground.

Orcutt Homes Showing Spirit of Halloween

"When hinges creak in doorless chamber, and strange and frightening sounds echo through the halls. Whenever candle lights flicker where the air is deathly still – that is the time when ghosts are present practicing their terror with ghoulish delight." (From the Disneyland "Haunted Mansion" script)

Welcome, foolish mortals, to the Haunted Houses of Orcutt... Surrounded by a very sinister looking custom fence, Doug Swain has created a spectacular bone yard and grave yard for each Halloween over the last 25 years with lighting, sound effects and animatronics. Swain is a metal worker and welder with other skills in fabrication on display at his home. When visiting his display at 950 Woodmere Road, his skills are abundantly evident. With the exception that there was a monster in the closet but they wouldn't listen," "Clair Voint," and "Will B. Eton," the messages are tongue in cheek along with more serious fare, actually taken from ancient tomb stones like "The Soul Rests but for Now." There is a full-sized crypt with an animated ghost, and the display has more bones and skulls than you can count; many real. Don't forget to look at the roof as well. This house is not to be missed.

Another spooky treat is right next to the Pine Grove cemetery, which adds to the legitimacy of this eerily complex Halloween display.

Haunting Orcutt for over 30 years now, "Stewart Hollow" at 5698 S.

Bradley changes a little bit every year.

Ron Stewart loves horror movies, and you can tell from the entertaining vignettes in his yard. This year his "dark portal above the swamp" is the main feature using projection accompanied with lots of spiders and other creatures. The "Will of the Wisp Marsh" features carnivorous plants (think Little Shop of Horrors) and lots of bones. This house also has sound effects, projections, and animatronics that liven up the spooky scene. A two-sided directional sign keeps you moving, inspired by books, both the Harry Potter and the Lord of the Rings series. In the back, a scary apothecary features an array of things any witch would covet. Visually rich during the day, this site really comes to life at night. "Many people come by and thank me for doing this," said Stewart. "I really enjoy taking with the people who come by and see it. Makes it worth the effort." Stewart added.

Only available for a limited time, don't miss out on the Orcutt Halloween houses, for "hot and cold running chills," bwahahahaha...

of some plastic skulls and skeletons, the whole display has been fabricated by Swain over the years. "I started creating cemetery displays as a preteen in the side yard of my home in Florida growing up," said Swain. It has grown from there. The monuments and headstones are particularly unique, with epitaphs like "She told her parents

Supervisors Delay Decision on 119 Homes South of Sunny Hills Park

Rendering of 119 home proposed development behind Sunny Hills Modular Home Park.

On October 13, the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors supported a motion by Fourth District Supervisor Bob Nelson to continue a proposed project planned for the land behind the Sunny Hills Modular Home Park that would add 119 homes adjacent to Highway 101.

The area is designated as Key Site 3 and was initially denied by the Planning Commission. The denial was appealed to the Board of Supervisors.

Nelson initially said the project was extremely deficient, an example of what he called “sprawl.”

“Ralph Dunlap school is almost two miles away; a bus stop is a mile away. There are not enough employment options here so workers will have to drive to Santa Barbara. If you want a bedroom community; this is it,” lamented Supervisor Nelson. Nelson said he did not hear support from any of the constituents who contacted him.

Adding to the density problem is the 2009 Board of Supervisor approval of what’s known as Multi-Family Residential zoning (MR-O) zoning. Under that designation 160 townhomes, yet to be built, would be situated in the middle of the current proposal. If approved, both projects would add 289 housing units to Key Site 3.

Saying he is glad he was not a Supervisor back then, Fifth District Supervisor Steve Lavagnino also criticized the location of the MR-O.

“Development on Key Site 3 is going to change the landscape of Orcutt and how it’s going to look forever. It can be developed, but we have to do it right.”

Supervisor Nelson made the motion to continue the project to a date to be determined with the suggestion that owner/developer Matt Mansi look at the option of moving the MR-O project, relocating the secondary access to Oakbrook Lane rather than Chancellor St., and adjust the density so the entire project possibly could be situated on the entire mesa.

The motion was approved 5-0.

Orcutt Schools Update

Working Hard to Keep Kids in School

Dr. Holly Edds, Superintendent, OUSD

Drive by the Orcutt Union School District on a weekday between 7:30 and 8:15 a.m. and you are likely to see some students, parents, and staff congregated around a table in a corner of the parking lot off Soares Avenue.

What you are observing these mornings is drop-in COVID-19 testing for students. The free, district-run operation is intended for students who have been home with COVID-19 symptoms, are feeling better, and can return to school with proof of a negative COVID-19 test. Because results from the tests are evident within 15 minutes, students typically can go from the testing site to their classroom that very morning.

"Each day we're fine-tuning how we test students," says Michelle Hughes, a member of the district's student testing team. "We have a pretty good system now."

In a time when COVID-19 cases are occurring in our community and on our campuses, rapid testing is a key component of our school district's efforts to ensure that students can remain in school for in-person instruction to the fullest extent possible. Special thanks to the members of our student testing team – Beth Chamberlain, John Edds, Tammy Hart, Hughes, Colleen Maloney, Kris Salvesen, and Linda Thompson – for doing this important task with kindness and professionalism.

Another critical part of our approach to COVID-19 is vigilance about following all state and county health guidelines. Our schools have been working to reduce exposure to COVID-19 by having all persons on campuses wear masks and frequently wash hands, moving meals and assemblies outdoors where there is less risk of transmission, keeping classrooms and facilities clean and sanitized, and restricting visitors. When cases do occur, our principals follow up to make sure the students' close contacts are tested. Students who test positive and/or come down with COVID-19 symptoms need to go on quarantine. Students who have been exposed but have no symptoms may continue attending school on a modified quarantine whereby they are tested twice during a 10-day period.

"We're doing everything we can to meet the requirements we have been given by the state and county," says District Nurse Administrator Michelle Romine. "We think the measures we have taken have made a difference."

Meanwhile, our district has partnered with County Public Health and Albertsons to make voluntary vaccination clinics available to eligible students (those who are 12 years of age or older) as well as parents and staff. As of this writing, we have hosted six clinics, and hundreds of persons have received vaccinations.

So our families, staff, and community can stay apprised on how our district is doing, we have posted a COVID-19 dashboard on our district website (www.orcutt-schools.net). The dashboard shows how many cases are currently active at each of our schools.

We look forward to the day when COVID-19 no longer impacts our lives the way it does now. But in the meantime, we are doing all we can to enable our students to be in school. Happily, our families have been grateful, especially for the free, quick-response testing we are providing their children.

"On the first day we were testing, one of the students' dads could not appreciate us enough," relates Kris Salvesen of the testing team. "He wanted to go to Cups & Crumbs to get some food for us. That kind of response makes us feel very good."

Superintendent Dr. Holly Edds can be contacted by phone at 938-8900 or by e-mail at hedds@orcutt-schools.net. She can be followed on Twitter at @hce101.
